INFORMATIONAL ITEMS.

- Revision to selection model. The Division II Men's and Women's Swimming and Diving Committee agreed to revise the formula used to set the provisional standards for relays from the three-year average of the 12th fastest time achieved for the season to the three-year average of the 12th fastest time achieved at the championships. The revised formula will be implemented beginning the 2017-18 academic year.

The committee received additional feedback from the membership requesting a slight adjustment to the formula used to set the provisional standards for relays. The new selection model, implemented for the 2016-17 season, significantly improved the depth of the individual event selections. However, the currently approved formula to set relay provisional time standards is now viewed as too stringent and, thus, limiting the depth of the relay pools. For instance, using the current formula for the 2017 championships, many top-16 finishing teams would have been excluded. The committee sees the revised formula as setting an achievable yet championships-caliber standard.

The new selection model has improved the depth of the field, and the committee is now selecting the fastest individual event swimmers to the championships meet. A revision to the relay provisional standards formula will help ensure the same opportunity for institutions with the fastest relays, thereby enhancing the student-athlete experience with no estimated budgetary impact.
