

HOW THE NCAA WORKS: Division II

The division offers athletics scholarships and limits competitive and practice seasons to improve balance with student pursuits.

The 308 colleges and universities in Division II share a commitment to providing college athletes equal growth opportunities in academics, athletics, and campus and community involvement.

Division II schools generally spend less money on athletics than Division I schools and operate on a partial-scholarship model, in which more than 60 percent of the 122,000-plus Division II athletes receive some athletics-based financial aid. Full scholarships that cover all of a college athlete's expenses are uncommon in the division; often college athletes, like the rest of the student body, use a mix of academic scholarships, student loans and employment earnings to fund their education.

Division II prides itself on creating unique championship opportunities. It is the only division to host championship festivals, where multiple championships are held in the same city over several days. During these championships, teams participate in community engagement efforts, a key component of Division II. One in every 8.3 student-athletes earns the chance to compete for a national title, the most opportunities per student-athlete in the NCAA.

Each Division II championship sport has a committee made up of coaches and athletics administrators with knowledge of that sport. These committees rank and select teams and individuals for championships competition, plus recommend championship sites and dates.

START

New rules for Division II start here, with the schools and athletics conferences that make up the division. No matter the idea – perhaps a university president wants to limit the length of a competition season or an athletics compliance officer wants to change how the NCAA collects information from Division II campuses – it begins as a discussion topic in one or more Division II committees or councils.

Some legislation is proposed by the members themselves. In order to submit a proposal, 15 active Division II schools or two conferences must be sponsors. Those proposals go directly to the NCAA Convention for a vote, but the Division II committees also discuss and take a position on those ideas.

Committees debate the ideas and decide whether to sponsor them as pieces of legislation. Next stop: Management Council, which considers the committees' feedback.

PRESIDENTS COUNCIL

The top leadership group in Division II, it is composed of college presidents and chancellors and establishes and directs general policy.

- Implements policies adopted by the NCAA Board of Governors.
- Establishes a strategic plan for Division II.
- Sponsors legislative proposals from the governance structure to be considered by members at the NCAA Convention.
- Can adopt administrative bylaws and regulations without approval of members, but sometimes seeks member support for these changes.

- Develops and approves the Division II budget.
- Approves regulations for Division II championships.

On rare occasions, the college presidents on the Presidents Council will propose legislation that goes directly to members for a vote at the NCAA Convention.

Composition based on regional membership numbers. Currently, 16 presidents and chancellors:

CONVENTION

The NCAA Convention, held each year in January, is the finish line for all sponsored proposals in Division II. Delegates from every school and conference gather during a Convention business session to place their votes on each proposal.

Proposal

Membership votes

Since the division was established in 1973, it has operated under a "one institution, one vote" model. But in 2016, for the first time, college athletes were added to the mix, with the national Student-Athlete Advisory Committee casting one vote.

In most cases, Division II legislation requires only a simple majority vote of members present. Sometimes – such as in 2015, when the NCAA added beach volleyball as a championship sport – legislation applies to the entire Association, and each division must reach its own majority vote to pass. In still other cases, Association-wide legislation touches on an issue so important that it requires a two-thirds majority vote of all three divisions voting in a joint session.

Legislation approved

Approved proposal takes effect on the date specified in the legislation, usually Aug. 1 of that year.

MANAGEMENT COUNCIL

By design, the Management Council is composed of individuals who have day-to-day knowledge of athletics operations.

- Reviews and acts on recommendations from Division II and Association-wide committees.
- Serves as the advisory group to the Presidents Council, handling the day-to-day affairs of the division.
- Implements policies adopted by the NCAA Board of Governors and the Division II Presidents Council.
- Makes interpretations of Division II bylaws.

29 members:
